HotStop products can help save you unwanted scalding

You're in the shower when someone flushes the toilet and your tail feathers get a scalding otherwise given the Christmas goose.

Instead, consider the HotStop products, based on a temperature-actuated, flow-control system from American Valve. Available at Lowe's, the line includes a tub spout ($24.98) or shower head -- fixed ($24.98) or hand-held ($39.98) -- all easily installed.

They're all designed to sense water that is too hot and shut down the flow. Once the flow cools, the flow returns. The HotStop system is backed as a tub-safety item by the Home Safety Council, the American Burn Association, the University of Michigan Trauma Burn Center and the burn centers at Shriners' Hospitals for Children. On the Web: h2otstop.com. (Gordy Holt)
